County Commissioners To Get Points From New York State

In conformity with an order of the county delegation the commissioners of Rockingham county are preparing for the erection of a new jail at the county farm at Brentwood. Commissioners William A. Hodgdon and Norman H. Beane of this city and Geo. A. Carlisle of Exeter left Tuesday evening for a short tour of New York state, in which they will inspect jails that are of modern construction and supposed to be adequately equipped for the retention of prisoners. Their trip will take about a week. The new jail will be constructed on to the end of the county farm building that now forms an L containing the old jail. It will probably be of brick work, reinforced with con-

CRIMINAL AND CIVIL SUITS ARE PENDING

Exclusion of Sailors From Hall Causes Uproar

Violation of New State Law Charged By Naval Authorities

Says the Manchester Union under the date line Portsmouth May 9: Both criminal and civil suits are pending today in the case of the Premier scenic temple. Naval authorities announced their intention of issuing warrants for the arrest of the proprietors for alleged violation of the state law which makes it a misdemeanor to deny an enlisted man admission to public amusement enterprises. Four young women have engaged counsel to bring suit against the management for the damage alleged to have been caused them by their expulsion from the hall.

Mayor Daniel W. Badger's attention to the situation was officially called today by Commander Cooper, commanding officer of the gunboat Marietta, who was with the sailors refused admission to the hall last night. Commander Cooper sent an aide to Mayor Badger with a list of thirteen sailors who were denied admission to the moving picture house.

The lieutenant delegate with the message was attired in the full dress uniform of the navy, having white gloves and a sword with the other effects. He patrolled the main hallway of the municipal building nearly two hours while awaiting the arrival of Mayor Badger.

Mr. Badger said that he is undecided as to what action he will pursue. He promised the delegate of Commander Cooper that the city will treat sailors fairly. Mayor Badger assumes that it is not his duty to begin proceedings of any kind, and that the situation now rests between the naval authorities and the proprietors of the scenic temple. He understands that Commander Cooper will eventually petition the city council to revoke the license of the establishment, but Mr. Badger says that the council undoubtedly would not interfere until the naval officers proved in court that a law had been violated.

A girl who was caused to leave the picture house Saturday night, has requested Attorney Albert R. Hatch of Kelley, Harding and Hatch to begin proceedings for her against the temple for the humiliation alleged to have been caused by her removal from the hall. Mr. Hatch has invited a conference with John C. McDonough resident manager, with the expectation of hearing Mr. McDonough's explanation for his action. The action for his client will be based upon Mr. McDonough's reply.

Attorney John W. Kelley, senior partner of the firm, has instructed Mr. Hatch to proceed to a definite and with the case as Mr. Kelley sees it a broad public question that ultimately must be settled. Mr. Kelley said today that his stand is one of eternal opposition to the moving picture houses as he considers a sailor "too good to enter it."

Others of the girls have also invited Col. John H. Bartlett of Page, Bartlett and Mitchell, to bring suit against the house on the same grounds. Colonel Bartlett says that he will thoroughly familiarize himself with the facts and then determine to his own satisfaction whether it will be for the greatest good to have the sailors admitted to the moving picture house in uniform or not.

The girls who were expelled Saturday night say that they have been constant patrons of the theatre and that their presence was not denied until then. On that night a sailor of the battleship Wisconsin, entered the hall in uniform. The usual sight of a sailor in the hall caused the girls to have a desire to dance with him. They claim to have been introduced to him and then to have tripped about the hall in the dreamy mazes of a waltz and two-step.

Mr. McDonough finally approached the girls and told them to leave the hall. All but one left immediately and the girl who at first remonstrated finally decided to leave without creating a scene. They returned (as they said) to the hall, last and demanded admission. Acting upon the instruction of Mr. McDonough, his ticket-seller refused to sell them tickets. Commander Cooper went to the office and demanded to know why the sailors were denied admission. He was not told. He and the sailors took notes and he then ordered them to disperse.

Commander Cooper at first advised Deputy Marshal Michael Hurley of the police department to arrest Mr. McDonough. Mr. Hurley told the naval officer that it was not his duty to interest the law and that Commander Cooper should consult the city or county attorney or other counsel. One of the sailors left forty cents up the ticket counter as he departed. He refused to accept it when the money was tendered him by Special Officer George H. Ducker.

The managers of the theatre were informed that there was to be a "rough house" at the theatre, last night, they say and they employed Deputy Marshal Hurley and Patrolman Oliver P. Philbrick to reinforce their regular equipment of officers. As a consequence of the publicity several hundred people were attracted to the scene.

Manager McDonough has decided to discuss the case other than to say

THE LIQUOR COMMISSION UNDER FIRE

Hearing Before Governor and Council on Ex-Inspector Small's Charges.

Gov. Robert P. Bass and the members of his council commenced Tuesday the hearing of the charges preferred by Frederick E. Small of Rochester, a former liquor inspector, against the board of license commissioners. The hearing being held at Concord.

The charges preferred by Mr. Small are 11 in number, and in brief are:

The illegal granting of a 6th class license to be exercised on the steamer Mt. Washington, plying on Lake Winnepesaukee.

Failure of the commissioners to enforce the law relating to the quality of liquor.

License of the Armstrong dining rooms at Wakefield, Nashua and Portsmouth.

Failure on the part of the commission to revoke the license of W. Ashton Horne of Somersworth, who was charged with selling a keg of beer to a blacklisted party.

Failure to bring Charles E. Hartshorn of Colebrook to trial on charges made by inspectors in October, 1906.

The covering of a complaint for the illegal sale of liquor under a first class license by William R. Buckman of Exeter.

Business of the office delayed by reason of the fact that the commissioners do not give their whole time to their duties.

Lax supervision of the exercise of first class licenses at the large summer hotels of the state.

The favoring of an enactment in 1905 giving special agencies the power of constables in criminal cases, while at the same time favoring another bill defining no license territory, which rendered impracticable and inoperative the former law.

Refusal of the commission to issue other than prescription licenses to druggists in no-license towns and cities.

Mr. Small appeared for himself. Attorney General Eastman represented the state in the proceedings and also acted as legal advisor to the governor while Gen. Frank S. Streeter appeared for the license commissioners.

Mr. Small opened the case by reading the specifications to prove and was examined at some length by Mr. Streeter, who early brought the attention of the commission to the mission from Mr. Small that in bringing the proceeding he was actuated by animosity towards the men making up the commission.

Mr. Streeter also brought in the record of the legislative investigation of 1907 and was permitted to place it in evidence by Governor Bass, against objection by Mr. Small, on the statement that it pertained to all the specifications in Mr. Small's bill, with the exception of the general charge.

This line developed that practically all the charges brought by Mr. Small, were heard by the committee of the legislature at that time and that Mr. Small, who was a member of the board of inspectors, did not offer testimony to substantiate them when they were on hearing.

At the conclusion, Mr. Small took up the specification relating to the failure of the commission to revoke the license of W. Ashton Horne of Somersworth for selling a keg of beer to a blacklisted party and introduced testimony from City Marshal Hall and Officer Royal of the Somersworth police force.

This and the cross examination by Mr. Streeter occupied the remainder of the forenoon and following recess the case was continued along the same line. The hearing was continued to a later date.

Ping Bodie Now Setting Furious Pace For White Sox Batters

Chicago May 10—Ping Bodie, the squat little Italian, with his five feet six inches of displacement, is the Chicago player of the hour. The San Francisco home run swatter of the Pacific Coast league, he having made a furious pace for the White Sox batters.

Besides hitting the ball hard, Bodie is running the bases like a deer and playing a fine game in right field. Last season Bodie was the champion home run swatter of the Pacific Coast league, he having made thirty.

TELEPHONE 2000 MILES

For the first time in the history of mankind the human voice carried 2000 miles direct Monday night, when New York found Denver over the long distance telephone wires. A group of Manhattan newspapers in one of the top floors of a downtown skyscraper threw their voices across the plains and mountains of nine states to another group awaiting the message in the Rocky Mountain city, picked up Omaha on the way and also gossiped with Chicago.

A "phantom" telephone connected with copper wires the thickness of a lead pencil brought the cities together and in all twenty-two people were exchanging messages by telephone and telegraph at once over these four wires. While the New York and Denver ends were in use, two other newspaper men and sixteen telegraph operators worked the New York-Chicago ends of four duplex telegraph instruments. The same four wires and the same current sufficed for the simultaneous needs of the twenty-two senders and receivers of messages.

With wires already strung, it cost $150,000 to make the change and kept a gang of wire men four months climbing 87,000 telephone poles and installing coils every eight miles.

"The next stop is San Francisco," declared J. J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, who superintended the extension of service. "We are on the right track and before long will have our wires clear through from New York to San Francisco."

TO ORGANIZE PATROLS OF GIRL GUIDES

Spokane, Wash., May 10—Plans have been completed by Rev. David W. Ferry, pastor of Emmanuel Presbyterian church of Spokane, founder of the Girls' Guides of America, to organize in several thousand cities, towns and hamlets of the United States and Canada within the next six months. The chief of the movement is to supplement in a material way the training of girls, between the ages of 11 and 18 years, for their particular sphere in life by inculcating womanly traits and refinement with devotion to home and love of neatness and order and to fit them for emergencies.

"Be Prepared" is the motto of the organization, the emblem being an uplifted torch signifying that the guide's action will always be above reproach and will endeavor to be a guide to those in distress and light the pathway of others to all that is good and noble.

The manual, now in press, prepared by Mr. Ferry for free distribution to those interested in the movement, says:

"Be prepared" in mind by having disciplined yourself to be obedient to every order, and also by having thought out beforehand any accident or situation that might occur, so that you know the right thing to do at all times.

"A guide will be on the lookout for girls who are strangers, lonely, homesick, or unhappy, and be ready to help them.

"A guide must take at least a half hour's exercise every day unless by the advice of a physician. She will sleep and work in the open air as much as possible.

"A guide will be cheerful at all times and under all circumstances and endeavor to carry and sunshine wherever she goes."

The plan of organization is similar to that of the Boy Scouts. A patrol is composed of from six to eight girls the officers being a leader, of at least 15 years of age, and an assistant.

Two patrols form a company or troop under the leadership of a captain, who must be more than 21 years of age and hold a certificate of appointment from the national headquarters. The captain appoints a lieutenant, who must be over 18 years of age. The local council is composed of company leaders and others interested in the work. The court of honor is formed by the captain and leader and assistant.

There are three classes of Guides. Before being enrolled as an apprentice the applicant must present a letter of consent from parent or guardian, understand the Guide laws, tie a bow, wrap a parcel, fold a dress correctly and take the following oath:

"I promise on my word of honor that I will endeavor to obey the Girl Guide laws at all times and that I will never willingly bring disgrace or dishonor on the Girl Guide society."

An apprentice is required to pass these tests before becoming a second class guide. One month's service, elementary knowledge of first aid to the injured, lay and light a fire in a cook stove using only dry wood and coal with not more than three matches; prepare and pack a simple luncheon; how to find and point the direction of the north star and know the 16 principal points of the compass; make an article of wearing apparel, and show a saving account of 50 cents.

The qualifications of the first class Guide are to sketch the outline of a tree, house or landscape, to name 10 wild flowers, to name 10 birds, and to name 10 plants with their special uses.

or characteristics and recognize six trees or shrubs; to name and describe six birds; to describe the proper action in case of minor accidents and drawing, fire, escaping gas, poisoning, sunstroke and fainting; to know location of ambulance, fire and police stations and the quickest means to reach them; to prepare and serve a meal of at least three courses to four persons without assistance, and to have a savings account of $1.

The Guide uniform is a sailor suit of dark blue material and a sailor hat with a band of company colors. Each patrol is named after a favorite flower, for example: White Roses. In which event the patrol color is white and green. The flower design is worn as a crest on the left breast of the blouse.

"We hear a great deal of talk in these days about woman's rights, as if the rights of men and women were not equal," Mr. Ferry said, in discussing the aims of the movement.

"A man's right is to be a man and fill a man's place in the world in a manly way. A woman's right is to be a woman and fill a woman's place in a womanly way. And although each is designed to a different sphere, the one is absolutely necessary to the other and both are equal in importance."

"Woman set the standard of conduct in this world and they should study to cultivate personalities that will be exemplary in refinement and in nobility of life and character. The Girl Guides of America will, therefore, be not only guides to usefulness, but will endeavor to be guides to the highest ideas and best life of mankind."

How Old Is Your Complexion

(From London Graphic)

"I have just returned from Paris, where I have been hunting up all the new fashions, and I have many valuable ideas."

"I obtained an interview with Madame De Verax, Paris' most renowned beauty. Although a woman of fifty years, she could easily pass for thirty. The skin on her face, neck and arms is clear, soft and velvety, and entirely free from wrinkles and stray hairs."

"She has never used powder or paint, but makes a solution by dissolving an original package of mayanone in eight ounces of witchhazel, and massage her face, arms and neck twice a day with it. This does not show upon the skin, removes all sorts of blemishes, and prevents the growth of hair."

"The use of powder will not be found necessary at all, as the solution removes any shine from the skin at once, and gives the face a dainty, natural color. The stray hairs will disappear if the treatment is continued."

CLARIBEL MONTAGUE.

Fourteen large steel tanks for the new building being erected for the Portsmouth Brewing Co. arrived in the city yesterday. They were from the Planters, house or landscape, to name 10 wild flowers, to name 10 birds, and to name 10 plants with their special uses.

Mexican Insurgents Demand the Resignation Of President Diaz as the Price of Peace.

The solution of the present trouble in Mexico seems to hinge on the question of whether Porfirio Diaz, the aged president of the republic, will relinquish the reins of authority. Francisco I. Madero, Jr., leader of the revolutionists, insists that the uprising must continue until Diaz is superseded. With Diaz out of the presidency peace would be a matter of days, declares Madero. The question of a successor is not regarded as vital so long as Diaz is removed from power. The above picture of President Diaz is the latest and is an excellent likeness. Diaz offers to resign after peace has been established. This proposition may or may not be acceptable to the insurgents.

BUSINESS MEN OF DOVER WANT HALF HOLIDAY

Dover business men appear to be somewhat in favor of a half holiday on Wednesday during July and August and petitions are in circulation among the merchants, grocers, marketmen and barbers to close their establishments at that hour.

The proposed closing is in the interest of the clerks and barber shop employees, who desire a half-holiday a week during the hot season. The move is to make it a general half holiday, giving it broader scope than heretofore, when only certain branches of business closed.

It is said that a meeting of the brass barbers will be called to consider the matter of closing their shops Wednesday instead of Monday afternoons, as at present. Unless all agree it is said that the change may not be made.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Editor Herald:

One night recently my daughter was passing along a certain street when she was insulted by a man in civilian's clothes. A man in the uniform of a United States sailor promptly stepped up to him and clapping him on the shoulder advised him to close his mouth before it was closed forcibly.

This sailor would have been expelled from some of the moving picture establishments. The rowdy who accosted my daughter would have, I suppose been admitted without question. Fair play, indeed!

In regard to the discrimination of uniformed men in public places of amusement I think it is time the City Fathers took hold of this matter in the interest of the city.

What is the difference between the money of a citizen of a man in uniform. Is there any? No there is not. An enlisted man in civilian clothes is not barred from admission why should he be barred in uniform.

If a riot should be created in this city people that are against uniformed men would be the first to look for their assistance. I should like to ask the question as to which is the most benefit to the city the money that is

SUSPEND CREW OF RUNAWAY LOCOMOTIVE

Benjamin A. Churchill, the hero of Monday's runaway engine episode in Salem, has been suspended from duty by the officials of the Boston & Maine railroad. With him to Leacher H. Williams, the engineer; Stephen L. Dodge, the fireman; John Gray, a brakeman, and Henry French, a switchman. This action was taken following a hearing held by Division Superintendent Henry Scannell and Master Mechanic Smith Gray's suspension comes because of the fact that it is charged that he could have prevented the runaway had he used the air brake. French comes under the ban for allowing the switch to be turned before the regular had come along.

While Churchill remains a hero in the eyes of the public, it is said in railroad circles that he does not stand in a like position with his employers. The reason for his suspension is that he was in charge of the train, and in coming, on the main line he was supposed to clear five minutes ahead of the express train.

INTEREST IN COMING APPOINTMENTS

In addition to the interest which is manifest and widespread in the personnel of the public utilities commission there is a growing interest in the question as to who will be selected to fill the office of attorney-general of New Hampshire at the expiration of the term of Attorney-General Edmund G. Eastman, which expires January 1, 1912. Among the names receiving mention are those of E. S. Cook and E. C. Niles of Concord.

With reference to the public utilities commission there yet remains a wide difference of opinion as to the appointees. While State Senator Robert J. Merrill of Claremont, Representative Raymond B. Stevens of Landaff and Prof. F. H. Dixon of Hanover are most talked about there are others whose friends believe that are in the running. There is a feeling among some members of the governor's council that at least one member of the present railroad commission should be considered in making up the new commission, and then there is a quiet movement to find a place on the commission for a resident of Manchester. Among the names discussed are those of William Savocool, Edward M. Slayton and Louis E. Wyman, all of whom are Republicans furthermore, and it is understood that William J. Starr would like to be considered as the Democratic member of the commission.

MARGARET ANGLIN, A BRIDE

Popular Actress Becomes Wife of Howard Hull, Actor and Magazine Writer.

Margaret Anglin, the actress, who was last seen in Boston at the Tremont theatre, a few weeks ago in "Green Stockings," which was her first venture into the field of comedy, was married Monday night to Howard Hull, a magazine writer. The ceremony took place in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York city, and was performed by Rev. Fr. Gleason, assisted by Rev. William J. Sinnott D. D. Mr. and Mrs. Hull sailed for France Tuesday on the Kronprinz Wilhelm and will enjoy a honeymoon trip by automobile.

Mr. Hull is the son of the late Will Hull, a former newspaper man of Louisville, Ky., and later of New York before he joined the theatrical profession as a press agent, becoming one of the best known and liked all over the country to the time of his death. When Howard and his brother Shelley wanted to go in the stage their father had them join a "Florodora" company in the sextette singers to see if they had interest enough to carry through a minor position.

They pluckily kept at it and came here for the Boston engagement at the Colonial Theatre. Liking Boston they secured places in the Castle Square theatre under the Ames-Deland regime, and played two years in a variety of characters. Since then they have revisited Boston several times. A little more than a year ago Shelley married Josephine Sherwood of Newton, a graduate of Radcliffe, who went on the stage, where she won success.

Howard, who has been doing more magazine writing than acting in recent years, first met Miss Anglin when she went to California, to assist in the preparation for the open-air production which she made there last summer. He assisted her in rewriting "Green Stockings" from the form in which it was played in London and turned a failure into a success. He was here all through her recent engagement at the Tremont Theatre, and assisted in the presentation of "Hippolytus" by Julia Ward Howe, for the Howe memorial fund.

There were rumors that Miss Anglin had been married on the last day of her Boston engagement, but at that time there had been no intimation of her engagement to Mr. Hull.

SLIGHTS TO BLUEJACKETS

Hardly anybody will deny that the Portsmouth navy yard is out and away Portsmouth's greatest asset. This being so, is it less than suicidal to openly show enmity to the blue-jackets, without whom neither the navy yard nor the navy could exist? Portsmouthians were plainly told not long ago, not only by officers at the navy yard but by the assistant secretary of the navy himself, that if more conciliatory tactics toward enlisted men were not adopted in this city very few ships would be sent to this navy yard in future. These ships and the repairs upon them mean bread and butter to hundreds of the Herald's readers.

The warning, it seems, has not been heeded. There will be an awakening in some quarters—undoubtedly—but when it is too late. This paper usually has no desire to attempt the management of affairs not its own, but when the interest, if not the welfare of an entire community rests upon the case in question, it is perhaps not out of order to observe that time shows are hardly in a position to make discriminations between peaceable jackies, whether in or out of uniform.

Our one and particular aim is to see Portsmouth grow and prosper. One or two men should not be permitted to deal a death blow to any of her industries.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

One-Third of World's People.

It has been said that the population of four hundred millions or thereabouts attributed to China and commonly accepted by statisticians is probably an exaggeration and, in view of the fact that until recently no official census of the inhabitants of the Celestial Empire was ever taken, doubt on this head has been justified. Within the past year, however, the Chinese Government, moved by the necessity of establishing a basis on which to provide for military rehabilitation, has taken a census which may be regarded as fairly accurate. The machinery used was that of the customs department, and as that department has bureaus in every district of the empire, the facilities for making an enumeration have been sufficient to warrant acceptance of the results as a reasonable approximation to the actual figures. The report furnished to the Government at Peking shows a total population of 439,214,000, which is, singularly enough, in excess of the most liberal estimate previously made. It may, therefore, be set down as an incontrovertible fact that China harbors nearly one-third of the population of the globe a multitude which, if educated to the full use of its own powers, should, by sheer force of numbers, become the dominant world-influence. Heroin consists the real yellow peril. China's civilization is still crude, but the developing process is well under way and it is disconcerting to contemplate what may come to pass when the process of development puts the Chinaman on a level with his Caucasian brother and enables him to enter upon projects of political and commercial rivalry.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Railway Problem.

Getting rid of a railroad which does not pay appears to be an even more difficult matter than getting free from the responsibility and trouble of maintaining a ferry that may have descended to some unfortunate heir long after he and his neighbors and the general public have ceased to have any use for it. Here in New Hampshire, as in other states, men were authorized by the legislature to maintain a ferry and carry persons and merchandise for profit. In order that they might have some protection against a ruinous competition, it was further and reasonably provided that the ferry should be maintained with suitable equipment and attendance, and should be open to the use of the public without distinction or prejudice during the season of navigation. Time came when many of the ferries not only yielded no profit, but were the cause of annoyance and actual loss to the owner, and it was then that the legislature was appealed to for relief. Had the legislature decided that the public good required the continued maintenance of an unprofitable ferry, the individual who was responsible for its operation would evidently have been in a disagreeable situation. The present owners of the electric road between Exeter and Portsmouth appear to be in a position somewhat similar. At all events, the present owners, who are the holders of the mortgage bonds, want to get the road off their hands, and as two successive legislatures have refused to authorize its discontinuance, the interesting question has now been raised as to the right of the federal power to interfere and bring about the discontinuance and dismantlement of a railway that lies wholly within a state. The enterprising gentlemen who promoted the enterprise and secured the building of the road probably had no idea that they were preparing the way for an issue which presumably must be settled eventually by a decision from the United States supreme court.—Manchester Union.

A TIMELY TOPIC

FROM "NEW ENGLAND," Published by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The Manufacturing Hope

HOPES of greater manufacturing development in New England rest upon several quite recently discovered or developed conditions. Chief among these is the new realization of the potential resources of New England. This supplies the personal factor which is to create the enthusiasm and the constructive promotive energy.

There would never be such a sentiment develop in New England if there were not a very solid basis, a perfectly good reason, for it. There must be dividends in sight in order that New England enterprise shall deal with home problems. Promises of dividends are accepted from the West, but not from New England. The guaranty of dividends to New England money and enterprise expended in New England has been furnished by New England land and by New England trade prospects.

Enterprise has had its eyes dazzled by the Pacific Ocean, and its imagination daunted by the necessity of leaping that vast ocean or turning back to whence it originated in New England. It has divided its forces: One portion is lingering on the Pacific Slope dallying with the fascinating work of making the land there yield dividends; one portion has shut its eyes and vaulted into China, Japan, Corea, the Philippines, and the Hawaiian Islands; and yet another portion, the smaller, has turned its eyes to the old home here in New England. This homing moiety is being joined by some home-keeping money and enterprise, and the promotion of New England is under way.

Much of this promotive spirit is going to the work of developing New England land, but a fair share of it is engaging in manufacturing and in collateral enterprises, such as the utilization of water powers. This latter is assuming great proportions, though it has not yet come out into the open in great volume. There is a great amount of money being put into projects for the harnessing of water powers in New England, and there are vastly greater amounts being prepared for by the securing of power sites along the rivers. These enterprises are not solely for the benefit of manufacturing, but primarily for the furnishing of power for street railways and electric light plants. They all contemplate the selling of electricity for power for manufacturing, as their secondary purpose, and expect that factories will group themselves within economical reach of their feed wires. This is happening wherever these power schemes have developed to the point of selling electricity.

The vital consequence of this move to utilize water power can only be conceived when the tremendous potential energy of the unused water powers in New England is taken into account. It has not yet been estimated with any degree of accuracy, but there is enough of it available to cut the power cost of all the mills in New England to the lowest electrical figure, and allow for their expansion to ten times their present capacity, or a hundred times. The potential power of the water that runs to waste in New England would be expressed in figures that would stagger the imagination, if it could be expressed at all.

Herald Short Stories, No. 3-- They point a MORAL

"THE HOUSE OF MY FRIENDS"

Next Sunday's Globe will contain the opening chapters of an unusually powerful serial story entitled "The House of My Friends," by Elizabeth York Miller. The plot is starting in its novelty, so startin gand so novel that the reader's curiosity is excited even by the first paragraph. A husband's devotion to the memory of his dead wife, a devotion which turns to demoulac hatred by the discovery after her death that she loved another, and that that other was his intimate personal friend—is one of the pillars by which the "House of My Friends" is supported. But the main foundation of the thrilling plot is the love of the crazed husband's sister for the wrecker of her brother's home. To appreciate the full import of the complex situation, bear in mind that although Dick Tennant has not a particle of love for Bridget Ryle, she tells a falsehood for the purpose of staying the hand of John Ryle which holds a revolver against the temple of Tennant. From that hour Tennant and she conspire to deceive her brother into the belief that Tennant's love letters and messages to Ryle's wife were in reality for Bridget, and that the wife was their friend and intermediary. That Ryle may be undecieved and moment and kill Tennant is a patent fact that fascinates the reader. Bridget is a beautiful young woman, and Tennant may fall in love with her. Another riveting circumstance. Yet she may lose her fondness for Ryle, not only through his cold indifference towards her, but through a moral awakening of contempt for the man who wrecked her brother's life, and cares naught for hers. That situation alone would compel the reader's insistent perusal of a serial story which is written in most attractive style and has not one dull line in it.

Make no mistake: Begin "The House of My Friends" in next Sunday's Boston Globe.

BREAK DELAYS RAISING OF BATTLESHIP MAINE

An accident occurred Monday to the wall of the cofferdam surrounding the wreck of the Maine, which will delay clearing the wreck from the water. All the cylinders composing the wall of the cofferdam had been completed and a majority of them were filled with mud and clay, when the exterior wall of one cylinder facing the sea weakened and then fell outward permitting the escape of the contents.

A survey of the cylinder showed that the damage apparently had resulted from the steel piling striking obstructions, such as detached pieces of armor plate, lying at the bottom of the harbor, the effect of which was a displacement of the cylinder wall under the surface.

All the members of the board of army engineers in charge of the work are absent from Havana, but Civil Engineer Harper, who is temporarily in charge, says that the accident does not affect the principle of the cofferdam but that it will involve a de-

FOREST FIRES

Writing in the Manchester Union on Forest Fires, Ex-Gov. Frank W. Rollins says:

I am deeply concerned about the forest fire conditions in New Hampshire. It is really a very serious matter. A large amount of our timber land is being consumed. The loss of the timber is not half so serious as the burning up of the young growth and the destruction of the seed. It will be many years before anything grows of any value on these burnt lands.

I wish to urge, through your columns, that all the cities and principal towns put out fire patrols while this dry weather lasts. It is much cheaper to prevent these fires than to put them out and the loss which is being caused is incalculable. Nearly all of the fires are caused by carelessness and with a sufficient corps of men outlying districts most of them can be prevented.

Everything should be held to a strict accountability for their conduct in these times. Particularly should the land contiguous to railroads be watched to guard against the danger from smokers on the engines.

I wish you would give this matter as much publicity as possible and call attention to it in your editorial columns.

FRANK W. ROLLINS.

President, the Society for Protection of New Hampshire Forests.

NAVY YARD

Fleet Sails for Baltic.

Bound for a foreign cruise of international courtesy, the second division of the Atlantic fleet sailed Tuesday for the Baltic sea. The battleships are the Louisiana, Kansas, New Hampshire and the South Carolina. Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger commands the division, the itinerary for which includes Copenhagen, Stockholm, Riga and Kiel. The vessels will arrive at Copenhagen May 25 and leave Kiel for Provincetown on June 30.

Engineer Officer Advanced.

Promotion is especially rare in the Corps of Civil Engineers of the Navy, so when Civil Engineer Alfred C. Lowenz was retired Monday on account of physical disability it marked the only opportunity that the junior officers will have for advancement, under normal conditions, until the next retirement for age in 1913.

Vessel Movements.

Arrived: Eagle at San Juan; Perkins, Kansas, New Hampshire and Louisiana at Hampton Roads; Des Moines, Cuttlefish, Tarantula, Viper and Hist at Charleston; Helena at Slakwan; Minnesota, Vermont and Mississippi at Pensacola; Bailey at Lynn Haven Bay; Stringham at Norfolk; Trippe at Boston; Georgia at Provincetown; Michigan at Tompkinsville. Six large oil tanks to be installed in the new oil storage house arrived at the yard today. Each tank has a capacity of 2000 gallons and will be put in place by the builders, the S. P. Bowser company of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Patternmakers Suspended.

Four patternmakers were discharged in the hull division on Tuesday for lack of work.

Looking Up the Check Matter.

Somebody got $20.00 by forging the name of a workman named Watt to a pay check and a hunt is on for the man that pulled off the game. Today several hundred of the workmen were required to give an exhibition of their handwriting by writing the full name of Watt.

Civilian Expects to Report.

It is expected that a report will be made during the next two or three weeks by the civilian experts on self-entitled management who were called upon by Secretary Meyer to ascertain what is desirable in the way of changes in the methods of conducting navy yards. Most of the navy yards have been visited by the experts, who have been inspecting the various bureaus of the navy department this week. After the civilian experts have made their report to the secretary of the navy, the board of naval officers, detailed in connection with the same subject, will begin its work. For the present, the officers composing the board are engaged in preliminary individual investigations. The board consists of Naval Constructor George H. Rock, Lieutenant Commander Walter H. Hardy, and Paymaster Charles Conard.

Hood Will Have the Goods.

Jessie Hood, the lightweight colored boxing artist and expert teamster has accepted a position in the public works crew. This is the first duty Jess has done for Uncle Sam and he hopes that the swinging of the sledge on rocks about the reservation will put him in trim to meet some of those newly made residents who are anxious to do a stunt with the gloves.

REBELS CAPTURE JUAREZ IN THE REALM OF FASHION

Garrison Held Church for a Long Time as Last Stand.

El Paso, Tex., May 9.—The general attack by the insurrecto forces on Juarez, Me., began at 4.30 a. m. after post firing.

The cannonading continued slowly. The rebels used their machine guns sparingly, while the federals poured their shells into the insurrecto outposts.

Mrs. Josefa Garcia and her young son were shot early today, the former receiving a wound in her neck.

At the Madero headquarters a report was received by courier from the front that federal cavalry had evacuated Juarez and were proceeding south towards Baucha. It is believed, however, the cavalry intends to flank the rapid influx of the rebels into town.

Gen. Madero has left his headquarters for the front. He wishes to see the progress of the battle, but will not be in active command.

The federals have renewed heavy firing. Bullets passed near the immigration station, but no one was injured.

Dr. Vasquez Gomez, who is in charge in the Madero headquarters report the insurrectos have taken the big cartel, while the federals are holding the church and small cartel.

Some of the federals are said to be retreating in the direction of the race track on the outskirts. The federals in the church are firing spiritedly.

The rebels have abandoned firing their field pieces for fear of hitting their own men, who are in all parts of the town. One of the rebels leaders has been hurt thus far.

An Associated Press correspondent returned from the interior of Juarez at 12:10 p. m. and reported that the rebels are slowly gaining possession of the town. The federals are keeping up a continuous fire from the church in the center of the town, but from no other point.

The insurrectos are concealing their whereabouts by withholding their fire and are skulking behind houses, in a gradual advance toward the federal stronghold.

Col. Garibaldi has just given orders to the insurrectos in his command to bring the field artillery into the streets, preparatory to shelling the church. He denied to the correspondent that he had been wounded.

A heavy explosion occurred just before noon, is believed to have been a federal mine, though it may have been caused by the dynamite bombs which the insurrectos are throwing.

The federals are gathered not only in the church, but alongside a huge gas tank. Telegraph and telephone wires have been severed and are lying across the streets. Mexicans are in front of the insurrectos' position.

Effective Hat Trimming.

Something new and effective in the way of a floral trimming distinguishes this charming hat of gray tagal straw, resting lightly upon the brow and stretching upward over the crown.

HAT OF GRAY STRAW.

There is a big branch of roses in lovely shades of pale pink and deepest crimson, supported by a mass of dark green foliage. These flowers are seen to great advantage against the background of gray straw, while the crown is encircled by a number of small bunches of forget-me-nots in two shades of blue. The brim of this hat is lined underneath with bright blue canvas.

The Oriental Headdress.

Paul Potier, that much talked about French dressmaker, has adopted the style of having his mannikins wear pieces of beautifully draped silk wrapped tightly around their heads so that only a little of the front hair shows.

This fad has been taken up by the fashionable world in Paris for indoor wear, and it replaces the broad ribbons for evening wear which were so popular there the past winter. It is an excellent and a very pretty fashion for home use, especially attractive, since it keeps the hair from looking untidy, and the silk handkerchief or scarf obviates the necessity of wearing false hair.

Handmade Turbans.

Large and small turbans of straw, straw, handwoven, are being shown in the shops. The crowns are high, and the trimming makes them more so.

FANCY MOHAIR SUITS REPLACE LINEN ONES

They Are Especially Suitable For Summer Outing Wear.

A fashion authority says that mohair suits are likely to replace the popular linen ones. There is this much to be said concerning the advantage of mohair over linen—that it does not wrinkle or crush easily. It stands a long strain without showing it, and when the coat is unfolded it is so light and so easily folded that it can be carried in a small suit case without trouble resulting.

It is highly advocated for traveling, especially for those who are taking long trips where it is difficult to have one's linen suits pressed in the various hotels and where one needs to wear the same coat suit for days at a time.

The fancy white weaves is supplanting serge to a certain extent this summer for dressy coat suits, which will be worn with white filler lace blouse and large picture hats in straw, or the vivid flower turbans that are holding their own against all newcomers.

Manufacturers say orders for mohair have tripled the orders for linen suits. This is attributed to a demand for a change and more particularly to the original and attractive weaves which the new mohairs show. They present little in common with the glazed plain surfaces of other days. There is a heavy diagonal twill, which makes the material look like peau de sole, and by the way, the manufacturers promise a revival of this strong, serviceable silk for fall.

The new mohair is very much like it, but it is lighter in weight and has a different finish. There are also mohairs with herringbone stripes in a slightly rougher weave. This kind, in white, is especially good for top coats. It is being made up into the same kind of coat that we once had in pongee and rajah.

When the mohair coat is thickly lined it instantly becomes warmer than linen, but many of the new coats are unlined, with a four inch facing around all edges of some brilliant contrasting color, or something in broad stripes. This is a rather clever trick of the designers. It minimizes the weight and heat and provides an effective and colorful finish to the inside.

A suit of white mohair cannot carry these color facings, because they cast a shadow on the outside surface—in other words, they show through no matter how faint the color chosen. While satin is chosen, however, for the white coats. It is cut on the bias, folded in lightly at each edge and slip stitched.

LOOPED THE LEAP.

His Act Delighted the Audience, but Enraged the Star.

"My father in his youth," said E. H. Southern, "was once playing in a romantic drama wherein he made a tremendous leap—a leap from his lady love's tower to a mattress behind a wooden rock on the stage far below. It was a thrilling leap, and my father no doubt enjoyed the applause it won him. But one night he sprained his ankle and vowed he would leap no more."

"So the manager hired a professional acrobat to do the leap made up as my father's counterpart, while my father would slip back under cover of the lower wall and descend to his dressing room by means of a hidden ladder."

"The afternoon the acrobat came to the theater to rehearse he made the leap, and then he set up a loud complaint."

"What's the matter?" asked a young member of the company who happened to be in the theater.

"Why," said the acrobat in a distressed voice, "this here leap is too tame. It's too easy. A man with glass eyes and cork legs could do it. Now, if they'd let me throw two slip-flops in the air as I come down—"

"Splendid!" cried the young actor.

"You don't think the boss would mind?" said the acrobat doubtfully.

"Mind? Why, man, he'll be tickled to death. Ten to one he'll raise your salary."

"That evening when the great leap scene began my father was gratified to see the acrobat, a perfect picture of himself, crouching in the shadow of the window."

"Love, good night, good night!" my father cried.

"Stay!" moaned the heroine, and she threw herself on his neck. "Stay! That leap is death!"

"Nay, nay, my own; 'tis honor, I leap, 'tis true, but there is that within my heart will bear me up—thine image, love. And so good night, good night."

"He kissed her madly on the brow, tore himself from her clinging arms and rushed across the open space into the shadow."

"Jump!" he hissed to the acrobat between his teeth.

"And out, straight out into the air, shot the acrobat. Twice his lithe shape whirled round like a great flywheel. Then he lit lightly and easily on the topmost point of the wooden rock."

"Roars of laughter and thunders of applause shook the theater. The acrobat bowed stiffly and strutted off into the wings with his arms folded. But the remarks of my poor father on his ladder have not come down to us."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Could Be Trusted.

The late Lord Young of the Scottish bench was responsible for enlightening many a dull case. One of the best remarks that ever fell from his lips was the reply to a counsel who urged on behalf of a plaintiff of somewhat dubious appearance:

"My client, my lord, is a most remarkable man and holds a very responsible position. He is manager of some waterworks."

After a long look the judge answered:

"Yes, he looks like a man who could be trusted with any amount of water."

His Secret Sorrow.

Some brothers are an embarrassment. Take the case of Miss Smith of Ogontz, who has a brother who works in the same office with young Burlington. Miss Smith was very much impressed with her brother's friends, and the two fell to discussing the young man.

"He's such a charming fellow," said the girl, "and I like his melancholy ways. He's so solemn he must have had some great trial that he's trying to conceal."

"Yes, indeed," said the brother. "He asked for a raise in salary a month ago, and the boss told 'im he wasn't worth it; that he was being overpaid now."—Philadelphia Times.

Hot Stuff.

A cowpuncher upon one of his frequent visits to town went into a restaurant and ordered a steak. When it was served he looked over the assortment of bottles in the center of the table and, selecting one which was new to him, poured the contents liberally over his meat. He cut off a generous bite, and the observers watched its progress to his mouth with some interest, for the bottle had contained tabasco sauce.

He tried in vain to swallow the morsel on his tongue while surprise changed to anguish in his face. Finally he jumped to his feet, and as he ejected the bite violently to the floor, he yelled:

"Blaze—damn you, blaze!"—Lippincott's.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

The Feline Influenza.

A large number of cats in the south of England are suffering from an epidemic disease which has been diagnosed as a kind of influenza. It does not seem to be commonly realized that the cat is an exceedingly delicate animal. It droops and dies with hardly a struggle.—Times.

Thomas is looking rather queer today,

Do you observe?

He's lost his verve;

He's off his feed;

He does not deign to plead

For milk or fish bones in his usual way.

What do you think's the matter? Can it be,

As 'twould appear,

That Thomas here,

Our faithful cat

(No, no, don't say it's that),

Has got the flu—our Thomas, even he?

The Jones' cat, you know, that was of yore

In splendid form,

Taken by storm

(But, I repeat,

Nor taken to the vet),

Has turned his toes up. So have plenty more.

You wouldn't think that cats that gambol

through

Life after life

In sin and strife

Would yet succumb

Without a kick to some

Untimely epidemic, but they do.

Look at our Thomas there, the hefty beast!

Who knows his plight?

Tomorrow night

May see him lie

Drooping and fit to die.

Sturdy and healthy? Bless you, not the least!

And that is why I look at him and say

That grief and dole

Assail my soul.

Life's but a flower,

And due in full of power.

And Thomas does look jolly run today.

The Motorist at Home.

"You have a fine lot of children, Bink," said Hawkins as after a spin through the country they returned to the house for dinner. "How many are there?"

"Seven," said Bink proudly. "I've often wondered," said Hawkins, "whether you people with so many children have any favorites among them."

"Oh, no," returned Bink hesitatingly—"that is to say, not consciously, but of course we are more interested in 'em model than in the earlier ones."—Harper's Weekly.

Logical.

A man, subsequently identified as a merchant in a southern city, was taken to a brain specialist for treatment for aphasia. When asked his name he searched his pockets, producing a huge roll of bills, but nothing to identify himself.

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've evidently forgotten my name and where I live; but, by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around as much money as this."—Success Magazine.

"Lobelia," demanded Mr. McSwat, "where is my pipe?"

"It was sailing out through the kitchen window the last time I saw it," answered his wife.

"I didn't touch it, Billiger; I took the tongs to it."—Chicago Tribune.

FARMERS' FREE LIST BILL BE-FORE SENATE

Washington, May 9.—A vote in the Senate on the Democratic farmers' free list bill, which passed the house yesterday, can hardly be avoided, even though it is the avowed purpose of a majority of the Finance Committee to pigeon-hole it. President Taft's insistence is practically certain to bring the Canadian reciprocity bill before the Senate, and the Democrats are expected to move to amend it by attaching the record vote. This course is satisfactory to the Republican Progressives, who are not envious of the Democratic plan because of its proposed free trade in meat products and they will vote against it. The bill cannot pass without Republican support, hence it may be regarded now as dead. The Progressives will have less hesitancy in supporting the bills reducing the cotton and wool duties, as no textile mills are found on the plains of Iowa and Kansas and only the New England ox is gored.
